Finding it difficult to keep up to date with the many happenings in the legal world? Look no further than the following two Internet websites that deliver the latest legal news to your desktop free of charge.

FindLaw

Try FindLaw's e-mail alerting services covering legal news, legislation and case law. Legal News will keep you up to date with current legal developments. The legislation and case law alerts notify you of new legislation and case law and provide you with a link to the full text of the case or legislation. The alerting services can be found at <http://www.findlaw.com.au/emaillists/register.asp#alerts>. It's as easy as checking each service you would like to receive, entering your details and then clicking Register!

LexisNexis Legal Express

Want a daily overview of current events on the legal scene? Legal Express is a free legal news alert service that can be e-mailed to you. It provides notification of legal news, case and legislative information. A list of legal news headlines, short case notes and a "Word of the day" is e-mailed every business day. You can even customise Legal Express to notify you of developments in your areas of interest. Join Legal Express by going to the following site: <http://www.lexislegal.com/aus/butterworths/productinfo/legalexpress/subscribe.asp>
